My passion is to provide relief for people who are in discomfort or pain through deep-tissue therapy. Soft tissue distortions can cause back, shoulder, and neck pain, hip pain, headaches, numbness and tingling in the arms and legs, jaw pain.... the list goes on! And oh, by the way, a deep-tissue massage doesn't have to hurt!

Listening to clients and understanding their concerns is of the utmost importance to me, as is the success of the entire massage session. My clients generally report their symptoms have improved and they are feeling much better after a session or two. That is why I love being a massage therapist.

I also enjoy bringing relaxation and stress relief to the many clients who come for a session of massage and simply state I just need to relax and de-stress. And who doesn't need some time for themselves and to feel that someone else is taking care of them, if only for any hour or so?

Well, there you go. If you have any other questions about me or my approach to massage therapy, please give me a call or send me an email. I'd love to talk with you about a massage therapy session that's right for you.
